

Simile

(sim-uh-lee)

A simile is a fun way to describe something! You could tell someone that your character has red hair. Or you could say that your character has hair the color of rubies! Let's practice writing some similes to describe someone you know. We'll pretend they're a character in a book! Think of who you want to write about, and then answer below to practice using similes!

My character's name is: _____

Hair color:

like (a/n):

something in nature that is the same color:

Hint: a lot of things are brown, so consider the shade of brown as well! Is it light brown like an acorn cap or dark brown like wet bark?

Eye color:

like (a/n):

something in nature that is the same color:

Excellent simile work! Now, put it all together and write some sentences using your wonderful similes!
